Project abstract (as defined by initial proposal and contract):

Arboles Comunitarios is proposed under Innovation Grant Category 1 as a national Spanish language education program. By utilizing the expertise of the Center of Southwest Culture community and urban forestry partners along with the targeted outreach capacity of Hispanic

Communications Network, this project will communicate the connection between the personal benefits of urban forest and quality of life in a manner that resonates specifically with the Hispanic community.

Project objectives:

- Bilingual website with mobile phone access that serves as an information hub
- Research and evaluation report from focus groups demonstrating information needed by the target population, cognitive retention of that information and behavioral shifts as a result of using Hispanic role models for persuasion
- Arbitron Ratings Service reports listing all the radio stations and cities reached along with the actual numbers of audiences who actually heard the messages broken out by gender and age cohorts
- Impact report on public awareness and behavioral shifts achieved via a graphic presentation and map of the USA and Puerto Rico with numbers of Hispanics reached, numbers who would have learned information based on extrapolating the focus group responses and projecting them against the actual audience numbers
- Impact report based on google Analytics analysis of numbers of visitors to the on-line resources, pages visited and use of the links out to resources and advocacy groups.

Objectives met successfully to-date:

- Research and evaluation report from focus groups completed
- Identified Hispanic community leaders and scientists to interview for radio spots
- Completed and launched web site: www.arbolescomunitarios.com, including links to local and state urban forestry organizations, national urban forestry groups, national Latino organizations, etc.
- Completed 10 radio spots for use nationally in HCN network with links to website
- Established Google Analytics to measure traffic on new website. Already collecting data
- Created FACEBOOK site for Arboles Comunitarios
- Scheduled and ran radio spots for national airplay on HCN. More than 31 million impressions
- One original newspaper column for La Columna Vertebral published in 40 cities with an aggregate circulation of 3,500,000 printed copies
- Neilson Ratings Service reports listing all the radio stations and cities reached along with the actual numbers of audiences who actually heard the messages broken out by gender and age cohorts
- Impact report on public awareness and behavioral shifts achieved via a graphic presentation and map of the USA and Puerto Rico with numbers of Hispanics reached, numbers who would have learned information based on extrapolating the focus group responses and projecting them against the actual audience numbers

How will this project increase the knowledge we have about urban forestry? How will the public benefit?

Urban forestry can improve the quality of life of Hispanics, especially those living in lower income neighborhoods, by creating opportunities for the community to empower and cooperate with each other in improving the value of their homes, and creating spaces where their children will feel safer and happier. Trees provide wholesomeness, shade, and a landscape that allows children and adults to relax in their private and community spaces. Trees are the antidotes for arid concrete filled inner city sprawl. By cooperative planting and maintaining trees, community members become empowered. The Arboles Comunitarios project uses Hispanic Role Models who explain how they were able to plant trees and cooperate with their neighbors to green their neighborhoods. This allows other Hispanics to feel empowered to emulate their behavior.

How will the results be disseminated to the public?

- Ten original Spanish-language radio episodes for the nationally broadcast radio series, Planeta Azul, airing on 200 full time Spanish radio stations covering 90% of all US and Puerto Rican Hispanics
- One original newspaper column for La Columna Vertebral published in 40 cities with an aggregate circulation of 3,500,000 printed copies
- Spanish language radio and print PSAs were offered for free to local and regional community forestry organizations for integration into their Hispanic outreach programs
- Bilingual website is fully functional with mobile phone access that serves as an information hub

Has the project met the projected timeline of accomplishments? YES.

Is the project on schedule? YES.

Is the project ahead of schedule?

Is the project behind schedule? NO.

If a no-cost time extension has been requested for this project, why is (was) it needed? N/A

- List the active partners (key individuals or organizations) involved in the project to-date: Urban Forestry Coalition, National Arbor Day Foundation, National Wildlife Foundation, Latino Initiative of the Sierra Club, Tree People in LA, LULAC, NCLR, The National Latino Coalition for Climate Change, ASPIRA, HACU (TX, Washington D.C., CA), Trees Forever, National Wildlife Federation, Energy Saving Trees, New Mexico State Forestry, Tree New Mexico, Trees That Please, Sacramento Municipal Utility District (SMUD), New York Restoration Project, Radnor Township, Arizona Public Service, Idaho Power, University of Kentucky Cooperative Extension Service, Shade Tree Program, Bemis Tree Farm, Keep Little Rock Beautiful, Arkansas Releaf Project, Tree Atlanta, Mississippi Forestry Commission, Act Trees, Tree Bank Foundation, Priority Releaf, Iowa Department of Natural Resources, MN Trees,

Pennsylvania Horticultural Society, Mt. Pleasant City, Conservation Trees for Nebraska, The Park People, Marion County City, Casey Trees, Nevada Shade Tree Council, Vermont Division of Forestry, One Seed Chicago

Comments considered of importance but not covered above:

This was a very successful project for many reasons. We were able to prove that the pilot project does work as a model. We learned that local, regional and statewide organizations that provide trees at free or reduced prices are lacking in the Southeastern US, but are strong in the Western US, the Midwest and the Eastern US.

We provided the full in-kind matching radio time, radio production costs and other contributions to ensure we met the project goals. We believe this pilot project can have a major impact to motivate Latinos across the US to pursue shade tree acquisition if we can expand the program through saturation radio spots instead of the programmed approach we used in this effort; if we can produce more radio spots; and if we can conduct focus groups to ensure the messages we produce are resonating with the target population.

We also believe we can convince more national Latino organizations and HACU to host our Arboles Comunitarios link, if we can focus more deeply on meeting with their appropriate staff and have the lead time to create buy in.

Un Servicio de La Red Hispana

Árboles Comunitarios

Por José López Zamorano
Para La Red Hispana

Los latinos residentes en Estados Unidos tenemos un parentesco cercano y sensible con la importancia de la conservación de la naturaleza y la protección de nuestros espacios naturales. Muchos llegamos de zonas rurales de nuestros países, donde los seres humanos y la naturaleza no nos vemos como entidades separadas, sino como una unidad de vida: el uno no se explica sin el otro.

Cuando las encuestas sondean el pulso de los latinos hacia la protección de la naturaleza, una mayoría de nosotros expresa su firme convicción ambientalista. Los latinos somos, por ejemplo, el grupo étnico más propenso a considerar la contaminación ambiental como un problema serio, por encima de afroamericanos, asiáticos y blancos no hispanos.

Sin embargo las preguntas que debemos hacernos son ¿es suficiente nuestro respaldo retórico? ¿estamos haciendo algo concreto para dejar un mundo mejor a nuestros hijos?

Hace un tiempo mi esposa y yo acompañamos a uno de nuestros hijos a un proyecto de conservación de un pequeño parque en el estado de Maryland, como parte de su servicio social en el colegio. Fue triste confirmar que los latinos brillaron por su ausencia y quizás nosotros mismos no habríamos asistido de no tratarse de un requerimiento escolar.

Aunque es solo un caso anecdótico, es una muestra de cómo muchos de los latinos somos ambientalistas de corazón, pero esperamos que alguien más haga el trabajo por nosotros. Es verdad que muchos de nosotros reciclamos la basura, pero ¿cuándo fue la última vez que plantamos un árbol?

Las justificaciones están a la mano: que somos jefes de familia y trabajamos mucho, que no tenemos tiempo, que estamos cansados, que no tenemos papeles, que sí queremos pero no sabemos cómo, que vivimos en un apartamento o en una zona urbana.

No hay excusa que valga. Los adultos siempre encontramos tiempo para ver la televisión, jugar con los amigos o salir el fin de semana. Es hora que hagamos del plantado de árboles un hábito, una ejemplar tradición familiar, como las bellas plantas que cultivaban nuestras abuelas en el patio de sus casas.

Si vivimos en comunidades urbanas, los árboles son el mejor amigo de nuestros hijos, los ayudan a ser más sanos y saludables, embellecen nuestro vecindario, nos dan sombra y nos reducen el pago de luz en el verano y hasta mejoran el valor de nuestras propiedades.

La información para plantar árboles está al alcance de tu mano. Solo tienes que buscar "árboles comunitarios" en Internet y encontrarás a las organizaciones esperándote. Hablan tu idioma e incluso te proporcionan los árboles absolutamente gratis. Hagámoslo ya, sin excusa ni pretexto, que el futuro de la naturaleza y el de nosotros es el mismo.
